

“...it is simple, like the flute of Hamlet, you only have to know how to play on it, and just like the musician who can delight you with splendid variations, the physicist can, on this balance, with no less delight determine the finest variations of gravity.

This way we can peer into such depth of the crust of the Earth, that neither our eyes, nor our longest drills could reach...”

